

TEXTO

Trafficking gang 'smuggled Bangladeshis into Brazil'

Brazilian police say they have identified a gang specialising in trafficking Bangladeshi nationals into the country.

About 80 workers have been lured by their own countrymen with promises of earning up to $1,500 (£985) a month.

But they ended up as slave labour in order to pay their smugglers nearly $10,000, police say.

South America's biggest economy has recently seen a steep rise in cases of illegal immigration.

The smugglers explored routes across the borders of Peru, Bolivia and Guyana to enter Brazil, investigators said.

Fonte: <http://www.bbc.co.uk/news/world-latin-america-22564202>

Tradução Livre

Trafficking gang 'smuggled Bangladeshis into Brazil'

Gangue de traficantes contrabandeou bengaleses para o Brasil

Brazilian police say they have identified a gang specialising in trafficking Bangladeshi nationals into the country.

A polícia brasileira diz que eles têm identificado uma gangue especializada no tráfico de nacional de Bangladesh para o país.

About 80 workers have been lured by their own countrymen with promises of earning up to $1,500 (£985) a month.

Cerca de 80 trabalhadores têm sido atraídos pelos seus compatriotas com promessas de ganhar mais de 1.500 dólares por mês.

But they ended up as slave labour in order to pay their smugglers nearly $10,000, police say.

Mas eles acabam como trabalho escravo a fim de pagar a seus contrabandistas aproximadamente 10.000 dólares, diz a polícia.

South America's biggest economy has recently seen a steep rise in cases of illegal immigration.

A maior economia da América do Sul tem recentemente visto um aumento no passo em casos de imigração ilegal.

The smugglers explored routes across the borders of Peru, Bolivia and Guyana to enter Brazil, investigators said.

Os contrabandistas exploraram rotas através das fronteiras do Peru, Bolívia e Guiana para entrar no Brasil, disseram os investigadores.